

2025 Environmental Education Events

Pollinator Palooza!: April 26, 2025

Pollinator Palooza! is a month-long celebration and educational program that highlights the importance of pollinators in nature and our food supply. For the month of April, we are hosting multiple workshops with elementary afterschool programs at no charge to the schools. On April 26, the Coastal Land Trust will host a FREE COMMUNITY EVENT at our Wilmington office to offer activities and information on pollinators and native plants.

Flytrap Frolic: June 7, 2025

Our 15th annual free community environmental education event features native carnivorous plants that thrive in southeastern NC. Participants will learn about several types of carnivorous plants, why they grow here, and how they trap their prey. We will have guides in the Rehder Garden to answer questions, and popular carnivorous plant-themed activities.

Be part of this “Environmental Education Package”. With your help, we will offer high-quality, family-friendly environmental education events at no-charge to our community!

Thank you!

The Coastal Land Trust Team
