

2026 Environmental Education Events

Pollinator Palooza! April 25th

Pollinator Palooza! Highlights the importance of pollinators in nature and our food supply. In April, we will host multiple workshops with elementary schools across southeastern NC at no charge to the schools. On April 25th, we will hold a free community education event at our Wilmington office to offer activities and information on pollinators and native plants.

Flytrap Frolic June 6th

Our 16th annual free community environmental education event features native carnivorous plants that thrive in southeastern NC. Participants will learn about several types of carnivorous plants, why they grow here, and how they trap their prey. We will have guides in the Rehder Garden to answer questions, and popular carnivorous plant themed activities.

Be a part of this special “Environmental Education Package”.

With your help, we will offer high-quality, family-friendly environmental education events at no charge to our community!

Thank you!
